UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

JOHN C. BOYDSTON,
Plaintiff,

No. C-06-04999 JCS

v.

ORDER TO REMAND FOR LACK OF SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION

ASSET ACCEPTANCE LLC, Defendant.

I. INTRODUCTION

Defendant, Asset Acceptance LLC, (“Asset”) brings this Motion for Summary Judgment (“the Motion”), seeking dismissal of Plaintiff John Boydston’s claim that Defendant violated the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (“TCPA”), 47 U.S.C. § 227. The TCPA limits the use of “an artificial or prerecorded voice” in calls to residential telephone lines and prescribes technical and procedural standards for regulating such automated calls. Plaintiff initially filed his Complaint in the Small Claims Division of the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of San Francisco, seeking $500 in statutory damages. Defendant removed the action to the Federal District Court for the Northern District of California. For the reasons stated below, the Court remands for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Court, therefore, declines to rule on Defendant’s Motion.

II. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

On July 12, 2006, Plaintiff, appearing pro se, filed a small claims complaint in the San Francisco County Superior Court. See Notice of Removal, Ex. A (Complaint). Plaintiff’s Complaint conclusorily alleges that on March 13, 2006, Defendant violated the Telephone

1 Consumer Protection Act. Id. The Complaint does not specify which provisions of the TCPA 2 Defendant allegedly violated. Id.

3 Plaintiff produced for Defendant an audio cassette recording of an automated voice mail 4 message allegedly left for him by Defendant on March 13, 2006. Topor Decl. ¶ 4. The recording 5 contains the following automated message, which is thirty-two seconds long and repeated twice:

6 This is not a solicitation or telemarketing call. Please return this call 7 at 1-866-345-7725. We are available Monday through Thursday, 8 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., Friday, 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 9 12 noon, Eastern time. Once again, our toll free number is 1-866-345-10 7725. Thank you.

11 Topor Decl. ¶ 4. Defendant does not dispute that it left the recorded message. Mot. at 2. In a letter 12 to Defendant's counsel, Plaintiff asserts that Defendant violated regulations promulgated under the 13 TCPA, specifically 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200(d), by not identifying itself in the automated message.
14 Topor Decl., Ex. A.

15 On August 18, 2006, Defendant removed the action to this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C.
16 § 1441 and 1331. Docket No. 1; Notice of Removal. Defendant alleges that the District Court has 17 proper jurisdiction because the Complaint alleges federal claims arising under the TCPA. Defendant 18 acknowledges in a footnote that the Ninth Circuit held in Murphy v. Lanier, 204 F.3d 911 (9th Cir.
19 2000), that state courts have exclusive jurisdiction over claims under the TCPA. Nonetheless, to 20 support removal here, Defendant cites a Seventh Circuit decision holding that the TCPA does not 21 preclude removal when an independent basis for subject matter jurisdiction exists. See Docket No.
22 1; Notice of Removal at 2 (citing Brill v. Countywide Home Loans, Inc., 427 F.3d 446 (7th Cir.
23 2005)). Defendant does not, however, allege any independent basis for subject matter jurisdiction 24 other than the TCPA in this case. See id.

25 Defendant answered Plaintiff's Complaint on August 25, 2006, denying any violation of the 26 TCPA. See Docket No. 5; Def.'s Answer. Both parties consented to proceeding before a U.S.
27 magistrate judge. See Docket Nos. 6, 7. An initial case management conference was held on 28 November 17, 2006, before the undersigned magistrate judge. Docket No. 16. On May 9, 2007, Defendant moved for summary judgment on the grounds that the TCPA provides no private right of 1 action for Plaintiff's claim. Mot. at 3. Plaintiff failed to oppose Defendant's Motion for Summary 2 Judgment. Docket No. 20; Reply Mem. of P. & A. in Supp. of Def.'s. Mot. for Summ. J. at 1.

3 On June 11, 2007, the Court ordered that Defendant show cause why the action should not be 4 remanded to state court for a lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Docket No. 24; Order to Show
5 Cause Why Action Should Not Be Remanded. Defendant filed a response on June 22, 2007, arguing 6 that subject matter jurisdiction exists as Plaintiff's claim arises under federal law and the Ninth 7 Circuit's opinion in Murphy v. Lanier is neither applicable nor binding. See Docket No. 25; Def.'s 8 Resp. to Order to Show Cause re Remand.

9 III. Legal Standard

10 A. Removal

11 Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a), a defendant may remove to federal court a claim filed in 12 state court that could have initially been brought in federal court.<sup>1</sup> 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a); Caterpillar 13 Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987). The propriety of removal depends, in part, upon whether 14 the claim falls within the district court's subject matter jurisdiction. Brodeur v. Swan Fin. Corp., 15 No. 4:05CV2418 DDN, 2006 WL 950208, at *1 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 11, 2006). As federal courts have 16 limited jurisdiction, they are presumed to lack jurisdiction unless the contrary is established. Gen.
17 Atomic Co. v. United Nuclear Corp., 655 F.2d 968, 968-69 (9th Cir. 1981). The burden of 18 establishing subject matter jurisdiction rests with the party seeking removal. See Kokkonen v.
19 Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994). Removal statutes are to be strictly 20 construed and any doubts are to be resolved in favor of state court jurisdiction and remand. See 21 Gaus v. Miles, 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992).

22 The Court may remand an action to state court for lack of subject matter jurisdiction or for 23 any defect in the removal procedure. See 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c); Tengler v. Spare, No. C-95-33421

24 _____
25 <sup>1</sup> Title 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a) provides:

26 Except as otherwise expressly provided by Act of Congress, any civil action 27 brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United States have 28 original jurisdiction, may be removed by the defendant or defendants, to the district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place where such action is pending.

1 SI, 1995 WL 705142, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 15, 1995). Remand may be ordered sua sponte or upon 2 a party's motion. Tengler, 1995 WL 705142, at *2. The Court may remand for lack of subject 3 matter jurisdiction at any time. Id. See also Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(h)(3) ("Whenever it appears by 4 suggestion of the parties or otherwise that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject matter, the court 5 shall dismiss the action.").

6 B. Federal Question Jurisdiction Under Section 1331

7 In the federal courts, subject matter jurisdiction may arise from either "federal question 8 jurisdiction" or "diversity of citizenship" when the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000. See 9 Caterpillar, 482 U.S. at 392; 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331-32. Here, Defendant alleges that removal is proper 10 because federal question jurisdiction exists. See Docket No. 1; Notice of Removal. Defendant does 11 not allege that there is diversity of citizenship between itself and Plaintiff, nor does the amount in 12 controversy exceed $75,000. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332. Consequently, the Court's jurisdiction over the 13 action turns on whether or not federal question jurisdiction exists. See Murphy v. Lanier, 997 F.
14 Supp. 1348, 1349 (S.D. Cal. 1998), aff'd 204 F.3d 911 (9th Cir. 2000).

15 Federal question jurisdiction is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 1331, which provides that "[t]he 16 district courts shall have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws 17 or treaties of the United States." 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Generally, "[a] case arises under federal law 18 where federal law creates the cause of action or where the vindication of a right under state law 19 necessarily turns on some construction of federal law." Republican Party of Guam v. Gutierrez, 227 20 F.3d 1086, 1088-89 (9th Cir. 2002) (quoting Franchise Tax Bd. v. Constr. Laborers Vacation Trust, 21 436 U.S. 1, 8-9 (1983)). "The presence or absence of federal-question jurisdiction is governed by 22 the well-pleaded complaint rule, which provides that federal jurisdiction exists only when a federal 23 question is presented on the face of the plaintiff's properly pleaded complaint." Caterpillar, 482 24 U.S. at 392 (internal quotation marks omitted).

25 However, "alleging a violation of a federal statute is not always sufficient to invoke federal 26 question jurisdiction." Murphy, 977 F. Supp. at 1349. Subject matter jurisdiction over a "formally 27 federal cause of action may be lacking" as a result of the statute's provisions and Congressional 28 intent. Id. at 1350. While section 1331 provides a general grant of subject matter jurisdiction to the

1 district courts over actions “arising under” federal law, this grant may be circumscribed by 2 Congress. Id. A federal law that creates a cause of action may assign jurisdiction over that cause of 3 action to courts other than the district court. Id.

4 C. Claims Arising Under the TCPA

5 In 1991, Congress amended the Communications Act of 1934 with the Telephone Consumer 6 Protection Act of 1991 (“TCPA”). Int’l Sci. & Tech. Inst., Inc. v. Inacom Commc’ns, Inc., 106 F.3d 7 1146, 1150 (4th Cir. 1997) (citing Pub. L. No. 102-243, 105 Stat. 2394 (1991) (codified as 47 U.S.C.
8 § 227)). Congress enacted the TCPA to “protect the privacy interests of residential telephone 9 subscribers by placing restrictions on unsolicited, automated telephone calls to the home and . . .
10 restricting certain uses of facsimile . . . machines and automatic dialers.” S. Rep. No. 102-178, at *1 11 (1991). The TCPA restricts the use of “unsolicited, automated telephone calls” to residences but 12 also prescribes technical and procedural standards when such automated and prerecorded calls are 13 allowed. See 47 U.S.C. § 227(b), (d).

14 A number of sections of the TCPA are potentially relevant to Plaintiff’s Complaint. The 15 TCPA limits the use of “an artificial or prerecorded voice” in calls to residential telephone lines. 47 16 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(B). Specifically, section 227(b)(1)(B) provides that “[i]t shall be unlawful for 17 any person within the United States . . . to initiate any telephone call to any residential telephone line 18 using an artificial or prerecorded voice to deliver a message without the prior express consent of the 19 called party, unless the call is initiated for emergency purposes or is exempted by rule or order by 20 the Commission. . . .” 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(B). Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(2)(B), the Federal 21 Communications Commission (“the Commission”) issued regulations that provide an exemption 22 from the prohibition on automated calls to residences for calls: i) made for emergency purposes; ii) 23 made for non-commercial purposes; iii) made for commercial purposes but not including or 24 introducing an unsolicited advertisement; iv) made to individuals with whom the caller has an 25 established business relationship; and v) made by or on behalf of a tax-exempt nonprofit 26 organization. 47 C.F.R. 64.1200(a)(2).

27 Section 227(b)(3) provides a private remedy for violations of section 227(b)(1)(B) and its 28 regulations. In particular, section 227(b)(3) provides:

1 A person or entity may, if otherwise permitted by the laws or rules of 2 court of a State, bring in an appropriate court of that State –
3 (A) an action based on a violation of this subsection or the regulations 4 prescribed under this subsection to enjoin such violation, 5 (B) an action to recover for actual monetary loss from such a violation, or to 6 receive $500 in damages for each such violation, whichever is greater, or 7 (C) both of the above actions.

8 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(3)(A)-(C).

9 The TCPA also prescribes technical and procedural standards for all “systems that are used 10 to transmit any artificial or prerecorded voice message via telephone.” 47 U.S.C. § 227(d)(3).
11 Section 227(d)(3) instructs the Commission to impose standards that require all artificial or 12 prerecorded telephone messages to identify the individual, business or other entity initiating the call 13 and state the telephone number or address of such individual, business or other entity. 47 U.S.C. § 14 227(d)(3)(A); 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200(b). Even lawful artificial and prerecorded telephone messages 15 must comply with the technical and procedural standards imposed by section 227(d)(3) and its 16 regulations. See 47 C.F.R. 64.1200(d); In the Matter of Rules and Regulations Implementing the 17 Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, 7 F.C.C.R. 8652, 8779 (1992); Oklahoma ex rel.
18 Edmondson v. Pope, No. Civ-06-487-C, 2007 WL 108943, at *2, (W.D. Okla. Jan. 9, 2007).

19 In contrast to section 227(b)(3), the remedy for violations of the procedural and technical 20 standards confers no private right of action. See 47 U.S.C. § 227(f)(1); Kopff v. Battaglia, 425 F.
21 Supp. 2d 76, 90-91 (D.D.C. 2006); Klein v. Vision Lab Telecomms., Inc., 399 F. Supp. 2d 528, 539
22 (S.D.N.Y 2005); Adler v. Vision Lab Telecomms., Inc., 393 F. Supp. 2d 35, 38-39 (D.D.C. 2005).
23 Instead, the TCPA allows States to bring suit to remedy “a pattern or practice” of violations of the 24 TCPA. 47 U.S.C. § 227(f)(1). Section 227(f)(1) provides that “[w]henver the attorney general of a 25 State . . . has reason to believe that any person has engaged . . . in a pattern or practice of telephone 26 calls . . . in violation of this section or the regulations prescribed under this section, the State may 27 bring a civil action on behalf of its residents . . . .” Id. Section 227(f)(2) grants the district courts of 28 the United States exclusive jurisdiction over such State initiated actions.<sup>2</sup> 47 U.S.C. § 227(f)(2).

<sup>2</sup> 47 U.S.C. § 227(f)(2) provides: “The district courts of the United States, the United States courts of any territory, and the District Court of the District of Columbia shall have exclusive jurisdiction over all civil actions brought under this subsection.”

1 IV. ANALYSIS

2 The Court must construe a pro se litigant's pleadings liberally. Martinez v. Ballas, Civ. No.
3 04-785-PHX-RGS, 2006 WL 2547368, at *1 (D. Ariz. Aug. 31, 2006) (citing Haines v. Kerner, 404
4 U.S. 519, 520 (1972)). Here, Plaintiff originally filed his form Complaint in state small claims court
5 and only conclusorily alleged that Defendant violated the TCPA. Compl. ¶ 3. Plaintiff's Complaint 6 does not state which section or sections of the TCPA Defendant allegedly violated. Id. Defendant 7 asserts that Plaintiff is alleging violations of rules promulgated pursuant to section 227(d), which 8 require every caller to identify itself when leaving an artificial or pre-recorded telephone message. See 9 Mot. at 1; Topor Decl., Ex. A. Plaintiff's Complaint, however, is ambiguous. It is unclear which 10 provision of the TCPA he alleges Defendant violated. Construed liberally, Plaintiff's Complaint 11 may allege violations of either section 227(b) or 227(d). See 47 U.S.C. § 227(b), (d). Defendant 12 itself appears to be unclear on this question, arguing that removal is proper based on jurisdiction 13 over section 227(b) claims but now seeking dismissal on the theory that Plaintiff has alleged 14 violations of section 227(d). See Notice of Removal at 2; Mot. at 3. This ambiguity, however, is 15 irrelevant as the Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over any claim by Plaintiff pursuant to 16 section 227(b) or 227(d). As a result, removal to this Court was improper and the action is 17 remanded to the state small claims court where it was initiated.

18 A. The Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Over Any Claims Brought Pursuant 19 to Section 227(b)(3)

20 A majority of the Circuit Courts, including the Ninth Circuit, have held that the TCPA vests 21 state courts with exclusive jurisdiction over claims brought under section 227(b)(3). See Dun-Rite 22 Constr., Inc. v. Amazing Tickets, Inc., No. 04-3216, 2004 WL 3239533, at *2 (6th Cir. Dec. 16, 23 2004) ("state courts' maintenance of exclusive jurisdiction over private rights of action under the 24 TCPA and federal courts' concomitant lack of jurisdiction to hear such private claims [is] well-25 settled."); Murphy v. Lanier, 204 F.3d 911, 913 (9th Cir. 2000); ErieNet, Inc. v. Velocity Net, Inc., 26 156 F.3d 513, 520 (3d Cir. 1998); Foxhall Realty Law Offices, Inc. v. Telecomms. Premium Servs., 27 Ltd., 156 F.3d 432, 438 (2d Cir. 1998); Nicholson v. Hooters of Augusta, Inc., 136 F.3d 1287, 1289, 28 modified, 140 F.3d 898 (11th Cir. 1998); Chair King, Inc., v. Houston Cellular Corp., 131 F.3d 507,

1 514 (5th Cir. 1997); Int'l Sci., 106 F.3d at 1152; but see Brill v. Countrywide, 427 F.3d at 451
2 (noting in dicta that removal of a claim under section 227(b)(3) of the TCPA was authorized by both 3 the Class Action Fairness Act and federal question jurisdiction).

4 In Murphy v. Lanier, the Ninth Circuit came to “the somewhat unusual conclusion that state 5 courts have exclusive jurisdiction over a cause of action created by” a federal statute, specifically, 6 section 227(b)(3) of the TCPA. Murphy v. Lanier, 204 F.3d 911, 915 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Int'l 7 Sci., 106 F.3d at 1150). In Murphy, the Ninth Circuit agreed with the Fourth Circuit’s finding in 8 International Science that Congress did not intend to grant federal district courts jurisdiction over 9 private causes of action under section 227(b)(3) of the TCPA. Id. at 913; see Int'l Sci., 106 F.3d at 10 115. The Fourth Circuit’s holding in International Science was supported by both the language of 11 the TCPA and its legislative history. See Int'l Sci. 106 F.3d at 1152; Murphy, 204 F.3d at 913.
12 While section 227(b)(3) grants state courts exclusive jurisdiction over private causes of action, 13 section 227(f)(2) explicitly confers federal district courts with exclusive jurisdiction over actions 14 initiated by the states. Int'l Sci., 106 F.3d at 1152. The Fourth Circuit found “it significant that in 15 enacting the TCPA, Congress wrote precisely, making jurisdictional distinctions in the very same 16 section of the Act by providing that private actions may be brought in appropriate state courts and 17 that actions by the states must be brought in the federal courts.” Id. Furthermore, the Fourth Circuit 18 found that the legislative history supported the conclusion that no federal jurisdiction exists for 19 claims initiated under section 227(b)(3) as Congress intended to provide a “speedy, effective, and 20 inexpensive remedy.” Murphy, 204 F.3d at 913. Private actions under the TCPA should therefore 21 be treated as small claims resolved in state court so long as the state allows such actions. Id. (citing 22 Int'l Sci., 106 F.3d at 1152). Accordingly, a claim alleged under section 227(b)(3) of the TCPA 23 does not confer federal question jurisdiction. See Watson v. NCO Group, Inc., 462 F. Supp. 2d 641, 24 646 (E.D. Pa. 2006) Martinez v. Ballas, Civ. No. 04-785-PHX-RGS, 2006 WL 2547368, at *1 (D.
25 Ariz. Aug. 31, 2006); Brodeur v. Swan Fin. Corp., No. 4:05CV2418 DDN, 2006 WL 950208, at *3
26 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 11, 2006); Redefining Progress v. Fax.com, No. C 02-4057 MJJ, 2003 WL 926853, 27 at *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 3, 2003).

28

1 Three appellate courts and a number of district courts have, however, recently clarified that 2 while the TCPA does not confer federal question jurisdiction, the Act does not interfere with 3 removal when an independent basis for federal subject matter jurisdiction exists. See US Fax Law 4 Ctr., Inc. v. Ihire, Inc., 476 F.3d 1112, 1118 (10th Cir. 2007) (holding that the TCPA did not 5 preclude federal courts from hearing TCPA claims when diversity jurisdiction exists); Gottlieb v.
6 Carnival Corp., 436 F.3d 335, 338 (2d Cir. 2006) (holding that while the TCPA does not confer 7 federal question jurisdiction, the statute does not divest federal courts of diversity jurisdiction over 8 TCPA claims); Brill v. Countrywide, 427 F.3d at 446; Kavu, Inc. v. Omnipak Corp., No. C06-9 109RSL, 2007 WL 201093, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Jan. 23, 2007); Klein v. Vision Lab Telecomm. Inc., 10 399 F. Supp. 2d 528, 533 (S.D.N.Y. 2005). As noted by the Tenth Circuit in US Fax:

11 [T]he diversity statute and the TCPA are not irreconcilable. In fact, 12 eliminating diversity jurisdiction would produce odd results . . . .
13 Congress's apparent purpose in divesting federal courts of federal 14 question jurisdiction over TCPA claims was that small claims are best resolved in state courts designed to handle them. But, this purpose has little force in a diversity suit, which by definition involves an amount in controversy exceeding $75,000.

15 US Fax Law Center, 476 F.3d at 1117 (internal citations omitted).

16 The Ninth Circuit has yet to address the validity of removal of TCPA claims when an 17 independent source of federal jurisdiction exists. District Courts within the Ninth Circuit have, 18 however, interpreted Murphy to foreclose only federal question jurisdiction of TCPA claims. See 19 Kavu, 2007 WL 201093, at *2 (finding that Murphy does not preclude district courts from hearing 20 TCPA claims when some other independent basis for jurisdiction exists); Kinder v. Citibank, No.
21 99-CV-2500 W (JAH), 2000 WL 1409762, at *3 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 14, 2000) (“Murphy stands for two 22 narrow propositions: (1) Congress did not intend the TCPA to confer federal district courts with 23 jurisdiction over private actions, and (2) the general federal question statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1331, does 24 not apply. Nothing in the Ninth Circuit’s analysis suggests that the TCPA precludes district courts 25 from hearing private TCPA claims where some other independent basis for federal jurisdiction 26 exists, such as diversity of citizenship or supplemental jurisdiction.”).

27 Defendant relies on the Seventh Circuit’s decision in Brill for the proposition that state 28 courts do not have exclusive jurisdiction for claims arising under the TCPA and that therefore

1 removal of this action to federal court is proper. See Docket No. 1; Notice of Removal, at 2 n.1; 2 Brill, 327 F.3d at 446. Brill, however, is distinguishable from the facts of this case. In Brill, the 3 plaintiff filed suit in state court alleging that the defendant had violated section 227(b)(1)(C) of the 4 TCPA by sending unsolicited fax advertisements and sought to represent a class of recipients. Brill, 5 427 F.3d at 447. The defendant removed the action to federal court pursuant to the Class Action
6 Fairness Act of 2005 (“CAFA”) and its diversity jurisdiction requirements.<sup>3</sup> Id. The district court 7 remanded the action to state court on the grounds that private actions under the TCPA “never may 8 be removed, because state jurisdiction is exclusive.” Id. The Seventh Circuit reversed, holding that 9 removal was authorized by the CAFA and that the TCPA did not foreclose removal. Id. at 451.
10 While the Brill Court noted in dicta that removal was also proper because the TCPA claim arises 11 under federal law, CAFA and § 1332(d) provided an independent basis for federal jurisdiction. Brill 12 did not hold that a private right of action under section 227(b)(3) provides an independent basis for 13 federal question jurisdiction. As Defendant here is not alleging that diversity jurisdiction exists nor 14 that there is an independent basis for federal jurisdiction, Brill does not support the removal of this 15 action to the District Court. Moreover, this Court is bound by the Ninth Circuit’s decision in 16 Murphy v. Lanier, which precludes federal question jurisdiction for claims pursuant to the TCPA.
17 See Murphy, 204 F.3d at 915.

18 This Court also rejects Defendant’s suggestion that the Ninth Circuit’s decision in Murphy is 19 no longer good law in light of two subsequently decided Supreme Court cases. Notice of Removal 20 at 2, n.1; Defs. Response To Order To Show Cause at 3; see also Grable & Sons Metal Prods., Inc.
21 v. Darue Eng’g & Mfg., 545 U.S. 308 (2005); Breuer v. Jim’s Concrete of Brevard, Inc., 538 U.S.
22 691 (2003). In Grable & Sons, the Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) seized plaintiff’s land to 23 satisfy federal tax delinquency. Grable & Sons, 545 U.S. at 310. The plaintiff subsequently brought 24 a quiet title action in state court against the tax sale purchaser, claiming that the defendant’s title was 25 invalid because the IRS had failed to notify plaintiff of the seizure as required by federal statute. Id.

27 <sup>3</sup> CAFA amended 28 U.S.C. § 1332 which governs diversity jurisdiction, providing that the 28 district courts shall have original jurisdiction over class actions in which there is minimal diversity and the amount in controversy exceeds $5,000,000. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d); Gottlieb, 436 F.3d at 341 n.7.

1 at 311. Defendant removed the action to federal court, arguing that the plaintiff’s claims presented a 2 federal question as title depended on an interpretation of “notice” in the federal tax statute. Id. The 3 district court declined to remand, finding that the plaintiff’s claim posed a significant question of 4 federal law. Id. The Sixth Circuit affirmed. Id. In Grable & Sons, the Supreme Court affirmed the 5 Sixth Circuit’s ruling, holding that absent a federal cause of action, federal question jurisdiction may 6 lie over state law claims when the state claim turns “on substantial questions of federal law.” Grable 7 & Sons, 545 U.S. at 312. The Court, however, noted that a “federal issue will ultimately qualify for 8 a federal forum only if federal jurisdiction is consistent with congressional judgment about the sound 9 divisions of labor between state and federal courts . . . .” Id. at 313.

10 In Breuer, the plaintiff sued his former employer in state court under the Fair Labor 11 Standards Act of 1938 (“FLSA”), seeking unpaid wages, liquidated damages, prejudgment interest 12 and attorneys’ fees. Breuer, 538 U.S. at 693. The defendant then removed the action to federal 13 court. Id. at 694. The plaintiff sought to remand to state court, arguing that removal was improper 14 because the FLSA provides that an action “may be maintained” in any state court. Id. The District 15 Court denied the plaintiff’s motion to remand but certified the issue for an interlocutory appeal. Id.
16 The Eleventh Circuit affirmed, holding that Congress did not expressly bar removal of FLSA
17 actions. Id. The Supreme Court affirmed in Breuer, holding that actions pursuant to the FLSA 18 could be removed to federal court because the statute allowed plaintiffs to bring suit in either federal 19 or state court and did not expressly bar removal. Breuer, 438 U.S. at 695.

20 These two Supreme Court decisions do not change the analysis in Murphy or the other 21 appellate court decisions which hold that private claims under the TCPA do not confer federal 22 question jurisdiction. See Brodeur, 2006 WL 950208, at * 4. Neither Grable & Sons nor Breuer
23 specifically address the validity of removal of TCPA claims. In Grable & Sons, there was no 24 statutory language providing for exclusive state court jurisdiction as there is in the TCPA. See id.
25 In Breuer, the FLSA expressly provided that actions could be initiated in either state or federal 26 court. See id. The TCPA stands in contrast, explicitly allowing private rights of actions to be 27 pursued only in state court. See id. At least two other district courts have reached the same 28 conclusion that neither Grable & Sons nor Breuer implicitly overrule appellate court decisions

1 holding that private claims under the TCPA do not confer federal question jurisdiction. See Clean
 2 Air Council v. Dragon Int'l Group, No. 1:CV-06-0430, 2006 WL 2136246, at *4 n.6 (M.D. Pa. July 3 28, 2006); Brodeur, 2006 WL 950208, at *2. Consequently, the Court finds that Defendant's appeal 4 to Grable and Breuer also fails to support removal of the action to this Court.

5 B. Violations of Section 227(d) Do Not Confer a Private Right of Action

6 As discussed above, section 227(d) and its regulations provide technical and procedural 7 standards with which all "systems used to transmit any artificial or prerecorded voice message" must 8 comply. Specifically, Commission regulations issued pursuant to section 227(d) require:

9 All artificial or prerecorded telephone messages shall:

- 10 (1) At the beginning of the message, state clearly the identity of the business, individual, or other entity that is responsible for initiating the call . . .
 11 (2) During or after the message, state clearly the telephone number . . . of such business, other entity, or individual . . . .

 13 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200(b). Section 227(f)(1) allows states to initiate actions on behalf of their citizens 14 for a "pattern or practice" of violations of the technical and procedural standards imposed by section 15 227(d). 47 U.S.C. § 227(f)(1). Section 227(f)(2) vests the district courts with exclusive jurisdiction 16 over all such actions brought by states. 28 U.S.C. § 227(f)(2).

17 In contrast to section 227(b)(3), the TCPA does not provide a private right of action for 18 violations of the technical and procedural standards imposed by section 227(d). Cf. Kopff v.
 19 Battaglia, 425 F. Supp. 2d 76, 91 (D.D.C. 2006) (finding that "Congress plainly opted not to permit 20 a private civil action for violations of the fax-sender identification requirements. . . [and that t]he fax 21 identification regulations . . . were issued pursuant to subsection (d) of section 227, and thus there is 22 no private right of action under the TCPA for violation") (internal citations omitted); Klein v. Vision 23 Lab Telecomms., Inc., 399 F. Supp. 2d 528, 539 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) ("[U]nder the TCPA, it is the 24 province of the state attorneys general and the F.C.C. to sue fax broadcasters for technical violations 25 . . . ."); Adler v. Vision Lab Telecomms., Inc., 393 F. Supp. 2d 35, 38-39 (D.D.C. 2005) (holding that 26 a private right of action does not exist for improperly identified faxes). The TCPA entitles 27 individual citizens to relief for the receipt of unsolicited telephone or fax advertisements, but not for 28 procedural or technical deficiencies in those lawfully received. See Klein, 399 F. Supp. 2d at 540-

1 41. As noted by the District of Columbia District Court, “[a]llowing separate recovery for each and 2 every technical violation alleged would create a windfall for plaintiffs clearly not in the 3 contemplation of Congress.” Id. at 540.

4 As discussed above, federal statutes do not always confer subject matter jurisdiction to the 5 District Courts. Murphy, 997 F. Supp. at 1349-50. “What ultimately must be determined is whether 6 Congress intended to create the private remedy asserted.” Id. (quoting Transamerica Mortgage 7 Advisors, Inc. v. Lewis, 444 U.S. 11, 15-16 (1979)). As recognized by other district courts, the 8 language of the TCPA unequivocally indicates that Congress did not intend to confer an individual 9 right to remedy violations of section 227(d). See Kopff v. Battaglia, 425 F. Supp. 2d 76, 91 (D.D.C.
10 2006); Klein v. Vision Lab Telecomms., Inc., 399 F. Supp. 2d 528, 539 (S.D.N.Y. 2005); Adler v.
11 Vision Lab Telecomms., Inc., 393 F. Supp. 2d 35, 38-39 (D.D.C. 2005); 28 U.S.C. § 227(f)(1).
12 Plaintiff, therefore, cannot maintain a private right of action for any alleged violations of section 13 227(d). Consequently, there is no federal question apparent from the face of Plaintiff’s Complaint, 14 regardless of how the Complaint is construed, and this Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over 15 the action.

16 V. CONCLUSION

17 For the reasons discussed above, removal to the District Court was improper as the Court 18 lacks subject matter jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s Complaint. Accordingly, the Court remands this 19 action to the small claims division of the San Francisco County Superior Court. Pursuant to 28
20 U.S.C. § 1447(c), the Clerk of the Court is directed to mail to the Clerk of the San Francisco County 21 Superior Court a copy of the order of remand.

22 IT IS SO ORDERED.
